For centuries village life throughout England has been centered on the Parish Church - and Holwell was no exception. There must have been some primitive place of worship in the village when the Saxon King Edgar granted the charter in 968. It is believed that there have been four churches on the same site since that time.

Built in 1895 to replace an earlier church and medieval chapel of ease. Although some brick and some stone from the earlier church was re-used, all the woodwork was sawn up and given to the poor as firewood or burnt on a bonfire. Thankfully some Flemish panels, which can be seen in the pulpit, survived.
